

People in High Places

It is not unusual to see human figures in decorative work on buildings. However, perhaps the most common place to see them is on statues in public places. They usually commemorate a person who was famous or who did extraordinary things for which people wish to remember them.

- Do you know of any statues of people near you?
- Who were they and why was a statue erected in their memory?

In the space provided draw a sketch or paste in a photograph of a statue of a person you have seen. Try to find out who the statue is of and why it was erected.

Information about this statue: